LEWISVILLE BANK HELD UP

MacDonald Regime Upheld By British In Tuesday's Voting

Win of Nearly 6,000 Votes Credited to Prime Minister

HENDERSON BEATEN

Conservatives Break All Time Records With 400 Seats

LONDON.—(P)—Prime Minister MacDonald swept into parliament by a landslide which gave the National government more than four hundred seats in the new House of Commons, won by nearly six thousand votes in the Seaham Harbor constituency where the official labor party repudiated him a month ago.

Running as a national labor candidate, he defeated the regular party's nominee.

His victory left Arthur Henderson, who succeeded him as labor chief, the only party head who had not been sent back to the House of Commons. Stanley Baldwin was returned unopposed.

David Lloyd George won although his old line liberals in the House will number less than half a dozen. Sir John Simon, chief of the Liberals who broke away from Lloyd George won by a substantial majority.

Conservatives, before all the returns were in had more than four hundred seats, breaking an all time record.

Henderson Beaten
The heaviest blow that labor could suffer came in the first returns with the defeat of Arthur Henderson, leader of the opposition, at Burnley.

Henderson lost his House of Commons seat to Rear Admiral, Gordon Campbell by a vote of 55,126 to 26,917.

At the last general election in 1929 Burnley returned Henderson with 28,091 votes to 20,137 for his nearest opponent.

Returns from 256 constituencies early Wednesday showed the following party lineup:

Conservatives 195; national labor 1; national liberals 33; opposition liberals 2; labor 22; independents 3. This gives the national government a total of 229 against 24 for the opposition, disregarding the independents. The tabulation includes acclamation returns previous to Tuesday's general election.

A tabulation, covering 113 seats, including those filled by acclamation before Tuesday's voting, showed 86 for the conservatives, 18 for the liberals and 9 for the labor opposition. No victories were recorded in that tabulation for the national labor party, the new party of the independents.

Four former labor ministers were election casualties. In addition to Henderson, who was foreign secretary in the labor government, these were Herbert Morrison, former minister of transport, Mr. Arthur Greenwood, former minister of health.

The liberals lost two seats and labor lost a total of 14 during the first few hours of the tabulation.

Former Hope Man Held at Longview

Dr. W. M. Garner Arrested on Assault Charge in Oil Field City

LONGVIEW, Tex.—Bond of $4,000 was set here Monday for Dr. W. M. Garner, physician and surgeon formerly of Hope, Ark., on a charge of assault to murder Leroy Zeigler.

Zeigler, director of the First National bank here and manager of the bank's office building, was stabbed and cut in an argument over a sign. A four inch gash was split in his abdomen, but physicians believe he will recover.

Bond was set by Justice of the Peace E. B. Penick at an examining trial. Dr. Garner spent Monday night in jail. Friends of the physician have posted the bond.

Caraway Operation Again Is Postponed

Shifting of Stone in Kidney Cause of Delay Doctors Say

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Postponement of a scheduled operation of Senator Caraway was announced Wednesday by his physician, who said that a stone in the senator's kidney, causing his illness had shifted, making an operation inadvisable at this time.

The senator's condition was reported as satisfactory.

Hunted After Armed Prison Break

A search throughout the eastern part of the United States was being conducted for these men after they had made their escape from the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton during an outbreak resulting in the deaths of two other convicts and a policeman, and the wounding of a guard. Left to right are James Stoddard, a veteran of two other prison breaks, and Frank Seibert.

Capone Bodyguard Sentenced To Jail

Two Weeks Stay of Execution Granted—Paroled to Attorney

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Philip D'Andrea, "gun toting" bodyguard of Scarface Al Capone, was sentenced to six months in the county jail by Judge James H. Wilkerson Wednesday for carrying a loaded pistol into federal court.

A two weeks stay of execution was granted and D'Andrea was paroled to Michael Ahern, who is attorney for both he and Capone.

Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F. Adjourns

Mrs. Emma Hamilton of This City Is Secretary of Rebekah Lodge

VAN BUREN.—W. W. Fisher of Texarkana was chosen grand master of Arkansas of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, succeeding Sam Crawford of El Dorado, by the Grand Lodge session here Tuesday. Walnut Ridge was chosen as the 1932 convention city.

Other officers selected are: Ellis Murphy of Eureka Springs, deputy grand master; Dr. A. E. Doran of Rogers, warden; Poulis Josephs of Texarkana, representative to the sovereign grand lodge to meet in Denver in September, 1932; J. A. Kaylor of Jonesboro, trustee; A. L. Sims of Little Rock, treasurer; R. S. Whitlock of Bentonville, re-elected secretary; C. M. Cochran of Texarkana, conductor; M. H. Claybaugh of Van Buren, marshal; John Pirl of Benton, chaplain; W. D. C. Smith of Trumann, inside guardian; T. C. Nail of Forrest City, outside guardian.

Rebekah Election
The Rebekah Assembly, women's auxiliary to the order, selected officers as follows: Mrs. Josie Burns of Texarkana, grand president; Mrs. Margaret Neal of Hazen, vice president; Mrs. Mae Claybaugh of Van Buren, warden; Mrs. Emma Hamilton of Hope, secretary and Mrs. Julia Gordon of Jonesboro, treasurer.

Installation ceremonies were held by both orders immediately and the convention closed.

With an address of welcome by Dave Partin, representing Mayor W. G. Furry, the Grand Lodge session opened this morning. Judge Louis Josephs of Texarkana gave the response. Mrs. Josie Burns responded to the address of welcome by Mrs. Anna Johnston Bailey at the opening of the Rebekah grand session.

A banquet meeting was held at the Wood Memorial Christian church, where the local Rotary and Lions clubs were hosts to the grand officers and others. The session of the grand encampment was held Monday.

Tax Moratorium Law Reaches High Court

AUSTIN, Tex.—(AP)—One of the principal "relief" measures enacted by the second extra-ordinary session of the Texas legislature in an effort to "ease" the way during existing stringent times for taxpayers was submitted to the supreme court for a determination of its constitutionality Tuesday.

The law would remit interest and penalties on delinquent taxes for those who paid the past due assessments prior to January 31, 1932. It was designed not only to relieve some of the burden from payers of taxes but planned as an inducement for debtors of the state to make remittances and thus replenish a badly depleted treasury.

Blackwood Voices Defense of Position

Highway Chairman Raps Charge He Directed Opposition in Talk

SHERIDAN, Ark.—(P)—Defense of his position on the highway audit question was made Tuesday afternoon by Dwight H. Blackwood, chairman of the state highway commission, in a speech at the dedication of a new bridge over the Saline river on highway 167.

Blackwood, center of a controversy between the house and session at the recent special session during consideration of a highway audit bill, declared he had consistently favored a fair and impartial audit of the highway department and characterized as "absurd" reports that he had "directed" "under my thumb" all during the recent session.

Lawrence Wilson, lieutenant governor, accepted the bridge for the state and in an address he defended himself against criticism for several clemency acts while acting as governor.

Both Wilson and Blackwood attacked various newspapers which they charged failed to tell the whole truth.

Seek Early Opening of Hunting Season

The Duck Hunters Want Shooting Season to Open in Disputed Area

AUSTIN, Tex.—(AP)—Now that Arkansas and Texas have about reached an amicable settlement of their dispute about which state should exercise jurisdiction over a hunting and fishing area on the boundary between the commonwealths, the federal government has been asked to open the duck shooting season there earlier than planned.

W. J. Tucker, executive secretary of the Texas game, fish and oyster commission, has wired federal authorities in Washington a request that the season in the particular zone be opened November 1 instead of November 16. Oklahoma's season opens earlier than November 16.

R. M. Hubbard of New Boston, Tex., legislator, here to report to Governor R. L. Sterling on his conference with the Arkansas state officials about the boundary dispute, said duck hunters in that section were petitioning the earlier opening of the season.

Governor Sterling had not returned from Houston to give personal consideration to the proposal of Arkansas that each state select an engineer, those picked to name a third one, to fix the line.

Damages Asked In Death of Preacher

Widow of Rev. Smith, Polk Hoovercraft Leader, Sues Railroad

MENA, Ark.—Suits have been filed in federal court at Fort Smith by Mrs. W. L. Smith, administratrix of the estate of the late Rev. W. L. Smith, against the Kansas City Southern railroad. She asks $50,000 damages. The case will be tried November 21, according to an announcement made here.

Rev. Smith, widely known Polk county resident, was killed by a K. C. S. passenger train on December 8, 1928, while crossing a small bridge on the right of way south of Mena. During the last presidential campaign, Rev. Smith, former pastor of the First Baptist church in Mena, was leader of the "Hoover Democrats" in Polk county and succeeded in carrying the county for the republican presidential nominee.

Flogging Parson Is Fined at Mena

Pleads Guilty and Court Regrets Having to Set Fine for Act

MENA, Ark.—(AP)—Polk county's flogging preacher, Rev. Sid Wise, pleaded guilty to assault and was fined $1 in circuit court here Monday, but Circuit Judge A. P. Steel paid the dollar for him.

Regret was expressed by the judge that it was necessary to penalize Wise "for a good deed"—the flogging of Bud Rawls who disregarded the minister's warning to stay sober and support his family.

Rawls did not appear in court. An assault charge against Wise's companion in the whipping episode, P. R. Larmore, was dismissed on motion of Prosecuting Attorney J. M. Jackson. It was explained that Larmore merely looked on while Wise administered the whipping to Rawls.

MENA, Ark.—Burlin Maddox, who shot Deputy Sheriff Pearson of Mena in the hand in an attempt to escape arrest, following the robbery of the Stradgery store at Opel, pleaded guilty to burglary Monday in Polk county circuit court. Judge Steel sentenced the youth to two years in the penitentiary.

Suspect Is Jailed In Tripple Slaying Probe at DeQueen

James Broadstreet, 40, Is Held Incommunicado in Jail at DeQueen

MANY VIEW SUSPECT

The Sheriff Silent as to Whether He Was Seen Driving Truck

DE QUEEN.—(P)—Although a suspect was held in jail and had been viewed by several persons, the slaying of three men in a lonely wooded section near here remained a mystery Tuesday night, with identity of one of the victims still undetermined.

James Broadstreet, aged 40, was arrested during the day and several persons sought to identify him as a man seen driving a truck belonging to E. S. Chappell of Springdale, Ark., a fruit grower, one of the victims, after the slayings.

Sheriff James Sutton declined to announce the results of the identification attempts, but said that he would continue to hold Broadstreet.

Broadstreet lived with his brother-in-law near here and was described by officers as a "drifter" who appeared here about two months ago. He denied any knowledge of the killings.

Widow Identifies Body
With definite identification of Chappell by his widow Tuesday, the identity of the body found with his last Sunday remained unknown, but was believed to be that of Chappell's companion on a trip through a part of Oklahoma.

The body first was identified as that of R. T. Ethridge of Schlatter, Miss., a salesman, but this identification has been abandoned because of the youthful appearance compared with Ethridge's known age of 50.

Ethridge has not been seen since his disappearance from a DeQueen hotel several days before the murders. Some of his belongings were left at the hotel.

The two bodies were found in the same vicinity where the body of a farm youth, Jack O'Dell, was found a week ago last Monday, the day after he had gone into the woods to investigate the sound of shots.

O'Dell's step-mother, Mrs. Ted Futrell, accidentally discovered the bodies of the two other men, covered with brush and lying beside a log.

Officers believe that Chappell and his companion were killed and robbed and that O'Dell was slain when he arrived upon the scene.

Chappell's truck, in which he left his home two weeks ago to take a load of apples into Oklahoma, was found on a mountain road near here yesterday. Several articles of clothing were found around the abandoned truck and these were identified by Mrs. Chappell as belonging to her husband.

Mrs. Chappell said her husband had written her that he had traded the apples for a load of wheat in Oklahoma and was going to Nashville, Ark. She said he wrote her he was accompanied by a young man whom he had picked up on the road.

Several persons told officers they saw the truck being driven about the country after the men were believed to have been killed.

Oklahoma authorities were brought into the investigation when it developed the men were killed just inside McCurtain county, about a half-mile from the Arkansas-Oklahoma state line.

Flag Pole Dancing Girls Face Courts

Judge Expected to Rule on Case in Texarkana Wednesday

TEXARKANA, Tex.—(AP)—The desire of two young women to dance for 100 hours atop a 50-foot flag pole on the roof of a hotel here was brought to the attention of District Court Tuesday—and resulted in a district attorney's admission he thought a Texas statute was worthy vaguely.

Betty and Babe Fox had advertised they would dance away 100 hours on the flag pole top, but District Attorney Elmer Lincoln intervened with an injunction suit, based on Texas' law against marathon dance contests.

Whether a woman's rights include the privilege of dancing, sitting or singing on a flag pole for personal profit as long as she desires was the matter the court was called upon to decide.

District Attorney Lincoln admitted that he doubted whether the exhibition could be termed public competition mentioned in the law and said he thought the statute was worse so vaguely it would be hard to obtain conviction under it.

Judge George W. Johnson said he would rule on the case Wednesday, but indicated he would dissolve the injunction.

The district attorney said he would attempt to stop the exhibition as a violation of the Texas labor law which forbids women being employed more than nine hours daily or 54 hours a week.

Benny Fox, brother-manager of the girls, retaliated with the assertion he could prove they were working under a partnership agreement and were not employed.

Trial of Little Rock Pastor Seems Delayed

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—A postponement of the church trial of Rev. M. Edwards Borders, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene here, on charges of misconduct appeared probable Tuesday although no official action had been taken early Tuesday afternoon as far as could be learned.

The trial was scheduled for Tuesday. The charges against the aged pastor grew out of complaints of women members of his congregation.

Announcement

Beginning Monday, November 9, The Star will increase its daily cartoons from three to ten, putting the newspaper features of Hope on a par with Arkansas cities twice our size.

In addition to the present favorites, "Out Our Way," "Freckles and His Friends" and "The Newfangles," The Star will present the following nationally-known drawings every day: "Our Boarding House," "Boots and Her Buddies," "Wash Tubbs," "Seaman Sam," George Clark's famous crayon drawing "Side Glances," "Flapper Fanny" and "Ethel."

This is the full family of Newspaper Enterprises association (NEA) cartoons and features of which The Star has been using about one-third during the last three years. We have seen these pictures in action among the newspaper readers of big cities, oil field camps and farm and city population—they are the best family cartoons in the world, and we are proud to be able to offer them to the Hope territory for the years to come.

With the introduction of a full comic page daily, and a better and faster spot-news picture service, we believe The Star has taken one more important step for its city and its trade territory. It is an undisputed fact that the trade territory of a city follows the circulation of that city's newspaper. For the advertising patronage of Hope merchants in the past we are grateful. We believe they have prospered. And we offer this substantial improvement in your newspaper as a sign of better times, today, and again still better in 1932.

Yours truly, C. E. PALMER & ALEX. H. WASHBURN.

El Dorado To Save $26,000 Each Year

Retrenchment Measure to Be Put Into Effect at Early Date

EL DORADO, Ark.—(P)—Drastic retrenchment measures, necessitated by defeat of a proposed $300,000 bond issue to reduce paymen's on the Union county courthouse will go into effect at an early date.

County Judge J. G. Ragsdale said all county officials would be called together within a few days to consider retrenchment measures.

Outstanding retrenchment plans, as suggested by the judge, include elimination of county agents' and home demonstration agents' work, saving $7,000 annually; cessation of work by the county health unit, saving $4,000 a year; abolishment of the annual $60,000 appropriation for paupers and for tuberculosis patients in the state tuberculosis sanatorium; and curtailment of janitor and telephone service.

The total savings, Judge Ragsdale estimated, would approximate $26,000 annually.

The proposed bond issue would have been the means of raising money to pay off the courthouse notes which amount to $45,000 a year. Depletion of county revenues during the last three years has caused a lack of funds.

Physicians Baffled as Woman in Coma for Days

EASTON, Md.—(P)—Physicians here Tuesday admitted themselves baffled by the coma in which Mrs. O. T. Fairbanks has been for five days.

Mrs. Fairbanks was found unconscious in her home last Thursday by two friends who called to accompany her to a club meeting. She was lying on her bed, fully clothed, and there were no marks to indicate violence. Physicians have been in constant attendance on the woman but have been unable to revive her.

Body of Druggist Is Found in River

HAD BEEN MISSING SINCE LAST SATURDAY NIGHT OFFICERS DECLARE

FORT SMITH.—(P)—Stripped and with a rock tied around his neck the body of Glen Little, 26, a Van Buren druggist was found Wednesday in the Arkansas river, a half mile below the bridge here.

He had been missing since last Saturday night when he went to run a trot line on the river.

A coroner's inquest was called immediately after the finding of the body.

$5,000 Currency Reported Seized at 1:15 P.M. Wed

Bulletins

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—An invitation to presidents and secretaries of bankers associations of all the southern states to meet at Nashville, Tenn., on November 5th and 6th to discuss cotton acreage reduction has been sent out by A. B. Lynch, president of the Arkansas Bankers association.

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The State Highway Department met in regular monthly session Wednesday to discuss routine departmental matters.

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The house republican leaders have agreed to call a conference here November 13, to nominate a candidate for speaker.

NEW YORK.—(P)—John McEdee Bowman, president of the Bowman-Biltmore chain hotels, died Wednesday. He was 56 and during the World War was chief of the hotel, restaurant, dining car and steamship division of the United States food administration.

FAVETTEVILLE, Ark.—(P)—An outgrowth of the old Anti-Horse Thieves Association, one time law enforcement agency of the southwest, a Northwest Arkansas branch of the Anti-Thieves Association has been organized.

Purpose of the Anti-Thieves Association, C. W. Karnes of West Fork, said, is for law enforcement and better protection of citizens.

The Anti-Horse Thieves Association was formed to end horse thefts in the early days and later developed into an anti-banditry group.

Woman Slayer To Fight Extradition

Attorneys for Mrs. Judd Will Ask Court Review of Requisition

LOS ANGELES.—(P)—The Winnie Ruth Judd murder case shifted Tuesday to a fight over extradition papers to send the confessed killer of two women back to Phoenix, Ariz., for trial.

Counsel for Mrs. Judd declared the papers, signed last week by Governor George W. P. Hunt of Arizona, were of faulty legal construction, and announced the intention of forcing a court review of the documents through a writ of habeas corpus.

On the heels of this declaration came a statement from the California attorney general's office that the papers had been presented by Sheriff James R. McFadden of Phoenix, and found complete. Governor James Rolph, Jr., signed the papers late Tuesday.

If granted, the writ proposed by the defense will force a court here to permit arguments on the legality of the papers. The writ will supersede a similar action filed upon the surrender of Mrs. Judd last Friday night.

Counsel did not disclose what objection will be made but it was anticipated the brief description in the extradition papers of the killing of the victims, Miss Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Le Roi, will be at least one basis for the contest.

The papers represent the time of the crime as October 16. Mrs. Judd has said it was October 17.

The announcement of the defense was an about face of the position taken when counsel said extradition would not be opposed.

Meanwhile, the principal investigation of the crime went forward in Phoenix in a search for evidence to break down an anticipated plea of self-defense and insanity. Mrs. Judd has claimed she shot the women as they attacked her during a quarrel over a man.

Additional legal difficulties affecting Dr. W. C. Judd, her husband, came to a head when he surrendered to a warrant charging the practice of medicine in California without a license. He was released on bail of $1,000 and a hearing was set for October 29. The complaint alleged he treated patients in a clinic.

Robbery Is Staged By Pair of Young Unmasked Bandits

Flee in Automobile and Are Believed Headed Toward Hope

Two unmasked bandits, believed to be the first National Bank of Little Rock, 21 miles south of Hope, 12:25 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and escaped with between $2,000 and $5,000 in currency.

The robbers were young men, about 28, and escaped east toward Stamps in an automobile.

The office of Sheriff Richard L. Duty, LaFayette county, advised Hope officers by telephone, however, to block the Hope-Little Rock highway as it was believed the bandits drove toward Stamps merely to deceive pursuers.

There is a short-cut road off the Hope-Little Rock highway, which is possible that the fugitives would trace their flight this way, to reach Hope, Nashville and Little Rock on their flight for Oklahoma, where they would make a bank robbery and highway team in this district.

A lone woman employee was in the bank at the time of the robbery—Mrs. Dave Patton, Jr.

The robbers made Mrs. Patton lie down on the floor while they went through the cages and gathered up the currency.

Officials of the bank checking the loss at 2 p. m. said they believed it would run from $2,000 to $5,000.

At 2 o'clock officers in cities and towns throughout this section had failed to find any trace of the robbers, although roads were being guarded within a radius of many miles, both toward Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Ashdown Negro Is Captured Tuesday

Mose Stinson Is Jailed to Await Hearing for Wounding Landlord

ASHDOWN, Ark.—Mose Stinson, negro, was captured early Tuesday by Sheriff Jim Sanderson in a house about five miles from where he is alleged to have shot and seriously wounded Pete Marsh, 50, his white landlord, during an argument over a crop on the Marsh plantation Monday.

The negro offered no resistance. He walked out of the house and surrendered to Sheriff Sanderson immediately after the arrival of officers. He is said to have been still carrying the shotgun with which he is alleged to have shot Marsh.

Stinson was carried to the Little River county jail here where he will remain until his preliminary hearing is held. The hearing had not been set at noon Tuesday.

Marsh, shot twice with small gunshot, was improving rapidly at the farm, a short distance south of Ashdown. Physicians said the wounds were not critical.

The search for Stinson began a few minutes after the shooting and continued without a halt until the sheriff's party discovered him secluded at the negro's house. He at first was believed to be hiding in a wooded section near where the shooting occurred.

Marsh blamed the shooting Tuesday on the negro's failure to understand the terms of an agreement under which he was to cultivate a portion of Marsh's plantation.

Marsh said the negro was disappointed over a settlement made between them over the cotton harvested by the negro. Enraged he ran from where he and Marsh were talking to a nearby house, obtained a shotgun and returned to shoot his landlord twice.

People Want Peace

CHARLES M. SCHWAB, addressing the Iron and Steel Institute, remarks that most of the world's trouble today stems back directly to the World war; and he adds, very emphatically, that the only hope for recovery lies in continued universal peace.

"I was talking recently," says Mr. Schwab, "with a crowd of observers who have been traveling around the world.
 He tells me that the desire of the masses of the people in all parts of the world is for peace. The talk of another war has no place in the hearts of people anywhere."

"This is true enough; and the great problem facing the world today is how to find a means of translating this worldwide desire into reality. The ordinary people themselves are converted. It remains only to bring their leaders into line."

And this, in turn, brings us to the curious fact that the ordinary man is usually a lot farther advanced than he gets credit for from the men who rule him. The follies and crimes that blacken the record of history are not due to the stupidity and iniquity of the mass of humanity; they arise because the men in high places cannot realize how eagerly mankind in general wants to be led along the right path.

It was not the common people who brought about the World war. It is not the common people who have kept hatred, suspicion and bitterness alive since the war ended.
 The world is in a mess today, and has been in one for 17 years, because its leaders could not understand that the race as a whole will respond just as quickly to altruistic idealism as to selfishness and jealousy.

For mankind in general is capable of almost infinite things. It asks only for the right kind of leadership. For a great many years it has been cheerfully going out to die on innumerable battlefields, for causes it could not understand; it has asked only that it be shown an ideal, only that it be urged to exhibit all the bravery and self-denial that it possesses.

Today its face is set toward peace. Yet the world continues to move toward war. How long before the leaders will discover what humanity really wants of them?

Grim Reminders

AT army aviation fields waiting ambulances are conspicuous features, or at least they were during the war days.
 Near the hangars, within sight of pilots entering planes to make a flight, these vehicles were watchfully waiting, ready to rush to the scene of a crash. Some pilots confessed that this grim reminder of the risk they were running—for flying in war days was a risky business—"got their goat," for they served the double purpose of a precaution and a warning.

Out in California it is suggested that ambulances be maintained at convenient places along highways. It is pointed out that a number of deaths resulting from automobile accidents last year might have been avoided if ambulances had been available to rush the victims to hospitals.
 Delay in obtaining attention proved fatal. The California plan would be to have these ambulances kept at specified places, at reasonably separated distances.

The plan could be improved by having the ambulances prominently displayed. The sight of an ambulance watch-fully waiting by the roadside might have a good effect in encouraging caution. If a motorist, inclined to fast and reckless driving, were to be given visible warning that "the ambulance will get you if you don't watch out," he might be induced to exercise some caution.—Jonesboro Evening Sun.

Hard Times 1900 Years Ago

IT IS a great thing to know a little history. Here is a professor telling about a financial relief measure put through in Italy during the reign of the emperor Tiberius in the year 62 A. D. The real estate market had frozen, prices had collapsed and owners couldn't sell, borrow or pay taxes. Something had to be done.

What Tiberius did was to make a fund of $5,000,000 available for mortgage loans without interest for three years.
 That was probably as much for those times as the $500,000-000 just arised for a commercial credit fund.

Unfortunately the professor does not tell us how that plan succeeded, but our knowledge is broadened by knowing it was tried 1900 years ago.

History is a great human interest study. Americans who think civilization was born with them probably know less of it than any other civilized people.—Texarkana Gazette.

Men on Horseback!

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — An unprecedented clamor for federal jobs is being made by a huge army of men and women.

The pile of applications has mounted far above all previous records. The applicants are:

1. Unemployed.

2. Just out of school or college and unable to land positions elsewhere.

3. Employed, but anxious to attain the security and steady wage scale enjoyed by government workers.

Many are grasping at straws, taking a crack at any old civil service examination, regardless of previous training and fitness.
 Applications are received from unskilled laborers even for the technical and scientific posts where college training is demanded of examination entrants.

The Civil Service Commission began to be swamped by this big depression rush more than a year ago when a record number of applications — 8500 — was received for 400 or 500 stenographic jobs in the departmental service here.
 A few months ago another record-breaking host of 34,000 applied to take exams for a few hundred file clerk positions, whereas a year previously there had been less than 5000 applicants for the same test.

NOW, in the forthcoming examinations for stenographers and typists—with about 2500 posts to become available at from $1260 to $1620 a year—a new high mark has been set by about 40,000 applicants.

The pressure is felt equally in other branches of federal service.
 In the spring of 1930, for instance, the commission held its examination for junior engineers and fewer than 1300 applied.
 This year the same examination brought out 4300. Similar increases are reported in examinations for other junior technical, professional and scientific posts.
 Those junior examinations are held in the spring, primarily for young men about to leave the colleges.

Uncle Sam's popularity as a boss among stenographers and typists is far greater than during the war, when about 20,000 of them were recruited for service in Washington. In fact, the condition is reversed because salaries were so high elsewhere and the competition of private business so stiff that the civil service recruiting staff almost had to go out and chloroform the girls before it could drag them in.

FILLING out the application blanks for any civil service job correctly and satisfactorily is a feat in itself. This blank resembles an income tax blank, except that it has six pages and asks many more questions. There are more than 50 main questions and subdivisions with dozens of questions which only require a "yes" or "no" answer. There is a space for a medical certificate, one for certificate of residence and another for a photograph. You are asked your "height without shoes" and your "weight without overcoat" and about all the commission doesn't know about you when you're through answering is how much butter you put on your breakfast toast the morning of June 18, 1911.

If you were ever charged with a traffic violation or any other police offense you have to tell about that or take a chance on going to prison. Minor offenses won't be held against you, but the commission insists on knowing about them.

ALSO: "Are you a total abstainer from the use of whiskey, wine, beer and all other intoxicating beverages?" Do you drink any of them "steadily" or "habitually" or only "occasionally"?
 And have you EVER drunk intoxicating beverages at any kind or used any narcotics?

The stenog and typist examinations will be held at about 600 places and the jobs will become available both in Washington and in the field. All the papers are sent here and rated. A register of eligibles is then made up and when the government departments begin to call for employees the commission submits the list, whereupon a selection is made from among the three eligibles at the top, the next selection from the top three then left and so on.

Many people read about civil service jobs and then write to your correspondent about them.
 That's a big mistake. Write to the commission. All applications for this year's stenographer and typist jobs had to be in by Oct. 8.

Mormon Hope

Salt Lake City was proud when George Von Elm won the national amateur golf champlonship. But that was several years ago and now they are hoping that Ralph Pugmire, above, will be able to bring them another title soon. Pugmire is a youth with all of the Von Elm style. His most recent feat was a 65, seven strokes under par, on the Utah Copper Club course in the final round of the Copper open, Utah's richest summer tourney. He played four consecutive rounds under par, winding up exactly 14 strokes under perfect figures.

What with these long counts, looks like Camera and Tunney are fraternity brothers in the school of hard knocks.

Atlantic liners are making one-day joy ride excursions beyond the 12-mile limit. When a merry-maker comes back, he's still at sea.

Now that Louis Booze has been sworn as a deputy sheriff in Nebraska, you might say Booze has been legalized.

Probably Capone didn't suspect when he was giving those buckles that he was handing out belts.

Aimee Semple McPherson celebrated her birthday in Boston without disclosing how old she had been.

An ex-hero was jailed for stealing jacks. If it had been singular, it would not have been singular.

Green Laseter

Mr. Johnson and Earnest Byers went to Conway last week.

Mrs. Mida Herring of Texarkana, and Mrs. E. M. Jones of Hope, spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. E. M.
 Stuart.

Miss Denville Ellis of Rocky Mount visited her sister, Mrs. Earl Fincher and Mr. Fincher, last week.

Miss Ala Mae Reece has been visiting Miss Mildred Johnson the past week.

The party given by Mr. and Mrs.
 Earl Fincher, Friday night, was well attended and everyone reported a nice time.

May Enter Race For Governor

General Charles P. Summerall, above, of Lakeland, Fla., is being urged to enter the race for the governorship of his native state. He had announced that he would retire from public life at the end of his present term as president of The Citadel, Charleston, S. C., but it is now believed he will make the race.

Minister Tried for Son's Murder

Accused of having slain his son to collect the youth's insurance, the Rev.
 James M. Williams (right), pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Rochelle, Ga., was brought to trial at Augusta, Ga. The body of the son, Reed Williams, (left), a pharmacist's mate in the U. S. Navy, was found slain by gunfire on a roadside. A blood-stained shirt which the minister is alleged to have sent to a laundry led to his arrest.

Mrs. Sid Henry Telephone 821

If we knew the cares and crosses
Crowding round our neighbor's way;
If we knew the little losses,
Sorely grievous day by day,
Would we then so often chide him
For the lack of thrift and gain—
Casting o'er his life a shadow,
Leaving on his heart a strain?
If we knew the silent story
Quivering through the heart of pain,
Would our womanhood dare doom
Them
Back to haunts of guilt again?
Life hath many a tangled crossing,
Joy hath many a break of woe,
And the cheeks tear-washed seem Whiter
Life hath always found it so.
Let us reach into our bosoms
For the key to other lives,
And with love, to erring nature,
Christ good that still survives;
So that when our disrobd spirits
Soar to realms of light again,
We may say, dear Father, judge us
As we judged our fellow men.
—Selected.

Coach Reports For Duty at 2:20 A. M.

Negro Trainer Only Member of Squad to Show Up for Practice

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—Fort Smith has had its daylight football and its floodlight football, but it remained for the Lincoln (negro) high school to furnish the first taste of pigskin pursuits by moonlight.

And not a single spectator was present when Coach Johnson trotted out his squad for the moonlight classic.

The coach himself probably would not have announced the moonlight session in advance—but an unruly alarm clock was the cause of it.

Displeased with the showing of his squad and unable to schedule attractive practice hours, Johnson ordered him steam to report for early morning workouts. He set his alarm clock to awaken the household before 5 a. m.

However, the clock "went off" at 2:20 a. m. and the coach arose.

Without a further glance at the clock, he set out on a tour of the neighborhood to awaken his players. Some 25 were assembled at the school before it was discovered the hour was 3:00 a. m.

But practice started.

Personal Mention

Mrs. D. L. Sullivan, Mrs. Frank Hagard and Mrs. Kelly motored to Gordon and spent the day Tuesday, visiting with relatives and friends.

Friends of little Miss Aubie Boyett daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boyett will be glad to know that her condition is improved after having been seriously ill at the family home on North Main street. She hopes to be able to reenter school within a short time.

Star Witness in 'Ride' Murder to Take Stand

HOUSTON, Tex.—(AP)—Tracing the movements of half a dozen major figures in the W. L. Edwards "ride" murder through witnesses, the state Tuesday afternoon prepared a background for the testimony of John Beale, the "star" witness in the trial of F. L. Bouknight, one of four indicted in the Edwards slaying.

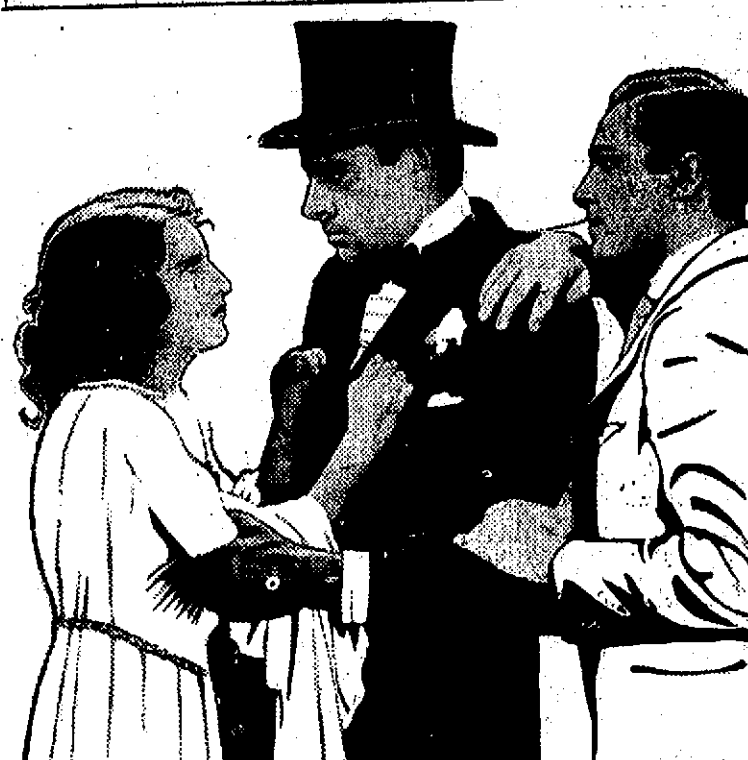

Bouknight is secretary to T. P. Lee, wealthy oil man.

BUILD UP TO PREVENT PAINS

How a Missouri woman was benefited by taking Cardui is described below by Mrs. Joe Schumer, of Cape Girardeau: "I suffered with irregularity. For weeks at a time I was so weak I could not work. I had aches in my back and head and legs—I ached all over. I would get dizzy and feel faint. I had read about Cardui, so I got some and took it. I improved a great deal. After I had taken four bottles, I felt like a different person."

America To See In Grandi Busy Man Of Simple Tastes

ROME.—(AP)—A frugal simplicity marks Dino Grandi, Mussolini's handsome young foreign minister who soon is to visit President Hoover in Washington.

Grandi smokes little, doesn't play cards, likes ham and eggs, and drinks water instead of wine.

His dress is simple, too, but it's an elegant simplicity. He wears a cut-away and a silk hat with an air to make the best Beau Brummel envious.

Grandi is a hard-working, straightforward man with a heroic fighting record in war and a list of achievements in peace that would make it unnecessary to pose if he so wished.

He was one of the little band of patriots who went outside the law and "annexed" Fiume with d'Annunzio. He left Bologna university at 20 when Italy entered the war, soon became a second lieutenant and ended a colonel in the Alpine corps with a silver medal, a bronze medal and three crosses for valor.

Back from the war with the red peril threatening his country, communists occupying the biggest factories, and politics in a bad fix, Grandi fought in the streets with his squad companions of the then embryonic Fascists.

With pistol, knife and fist he aided in one of the biggest policing jobs any country ever has had, done by self-appointed rough and ready patriots.

Grandi enjoys good food, but eats moderately. He drinks but little wine, usually only the toast at public dinners. When the minister is very busy he has lunch sent in to his office. Usually he has ham and eggs, a bottle of water and plenty of fruit.

Grandi and his young wife have two children, Franco, 6, and Simona, 4. The family lives a simple life in a country home, for Grandi is not a rich man.

U. of A. Basketball Team Begins Practice

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—Hoping to regain the Southwest Conference title lost last year to Texas Christian University, University of Arkansas basketball players are engaging in light workouts in preparation for the opening of the cage season.

A number of men eligible for the Varsity quintet this year are playing football, but 20 candidates have drawn basketball equipment and are going through light workouts each afternoon.

Arkansas Nurses End Little Rock Meeting

PINE BLUFF.—(AP)—Selecting Fort Smith for the 1932 meeting and electing Mrs. E. A. Teter, of Little Rock, president, the annual convention of the Arkansas State Nurses' Association ended here Tuesday.

Other officers are Mrs. M. L. Niedermier, Pine Bluff, first vice president; Mrs. O. F. Snow, Camden, second vice president; Miss Elizabeth Hoffman, Hot Springs, third vice president; Miss Blanche Omaszewski, Pine Bluff, secretary treasurer. Mrs. O. L. Deubler and Sister Bridget, both of Little Rock, were named state councilors.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

ALTHOUGH the superstitions originally associated with "All Hallow" or "All Saints" day have been dispelled, Hallowe'en celebrations have developed into jolly parties at which all sorts of pranks and traditional games are played and much nonsensical fortune-telling is included. The witches and goblins, black cats and other manifestations of the evil spirits now provide a decorative background for hilarious entertainment.

Delicious and typical refreshments are as much a part of the festivities as the decorations and "stunts" and have actually grown out of the fascinating traditions of the ancient "All Hallow" eve feast.

A ghost supper is lots of fun and decidedly apropos for Hallowe'en. The following menu is seasonal and colorful:

Ghost Supper
Cream of Squash Soup
Toasted Crackers
Shades of Chicken
Spooks Salad
Cheese Cups
Jack O'Lantern Ice Cream
Soothsayers' Puffballs
Coffee

A stewing chicken is combined with oysters and mushrooms and served in a cream sauce on mounds of cooked rice. Cook chicken in water to cover until tender before combining in sauce. Egg yolks can be stirred into the sauce just before serving if a yellow color scheme is being carried out.

Serve the salad in small yellow sweet peppers. Apples, celery, white grapes and nuts combined with mayonnaise make a good salad.

Scoop-out oranges and cut Jack

How Lives Are Saved in Subs

Tests showing the most modern methods in submarine rescue work, which the U. S. navy scheduled for Oct. 26 off San Diego, Calif., are illustrated here. The artist has sketched the rescue vessel Ortolan pumping fresh air to the submerged submarine Narwhal (until recently the V-5) and also a diver descending from the Ortolan to put food aboard the sub via one of its double-doored escape hatches. The diver taps with a hammer as a signal to inquire if the inner door is closed, the food therein and closes it. The men within the sub then drain the water in the hatch into the bilges and open the inner door to receive the food. It is said men can be kept alive and fed for many days by this method. The photos show an escape hatch and an officer in the sub at the lower end of the periscope.

on the 10th day of July, A. D. 1931 in a certain cause (N 2394) then pending therein between The Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, Missouri, a corporation, complainant, and J. M. D. 1931, the following described real estate, to-wit:

The Southeast Quarter (SE<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>) of the Southeast Quarter (SE<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>) of Section Twelve (12); the East Half (E<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>) of the Northeast Quarter (NE<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>) of Section Fourteen (14); all in Township Thirteen (13) South, of Range Twenty-seven (27) West, of the Fifth Principal Meridian, and containing in the aggregate four hundred and eighty (480) acres, more or less, all in Hempstead County, Arkansas.

TERMS OF SALE: On a credit of three months, the purchaser being required to execute a bond as required by law and the order and decree of said Court in said cause, with approved security, bearing interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from date of sale until paid and a lien being retained on the premises sold to secure the payment of the purchase money.

In Strange East-West Love Drama

Claiming she is the mother of little Yukio Hayakawa, recently adopted by Sessue Hayakawa, Japanese film actor, and his wife, Tsuru Aoki, the actress Miss Ruth Noble, shown at lower left, has filed suit in Los Angeles for possession of the child. Miss Noble claims that Hayakawa is the father, and that she agreed to her son's adoption at the time, but has changed her mind. She and Hayakawa were formerly partners in a vaudeville act. Hayakawa the child and his wife are shown above.

CHAPTER XLVIII

It was Louise who finally cleared it all up for them—with what facts De Loma's confession gave them. Stalky beautiful in her grief, the old artfulness wiped away by the utter genuineness of her emotion, she sat stiffly erect in her chair while the others heard what she had to tell.

Bruce was not there, but that was just as well, for he must have been hurt horribly by the revelation that the woman he loved had never loved him at all. He had been only a rich man's son to her, while the nonpareil De Loma—who, as Mary suspected, had neglected to divorce her—had been the real and only love of her life.

De Loma was not a count, of course, nor even a true Spaniard. Just a youth of mixed blood and obscure heritage, born in the little country town on the Dixie Highway where Bates had encountered him, staring at the courthouse steeple in such peculiar fashion.

That was an odd thing, but easily understood when you knew what the tragedy of his ill-starred life had been. Even as a limber-legged youth, he had had aspirations to be a human fly! More daring than the others, he had enjoyed impressing them with his reckless agility, and before long he had become a professional, traveling about with a manager who talked stores into paying him to carry their advertising signs on his back as he climbed public buildings.

Enrique De Loma was too much of a name for the typographers, however, and less musical—his manager believed—than the English version of his name. Thus he became "Harry Hill, the Human Fly" on all the posters. Afterward when he branched out into other professions he often used the name as an alias. This accounted for Bowen's inability to uncover his police record.

But what, Bates interrupted at this point, had the village courthouse to do with all this? Was it merely sentiment that carried him back to the scene upon it years afterward?

"He fell, you see," Louise explained. Apparently she saw nothing funny in her lover's choice of occupation; it was all bitterly real to her.

"He—possibly he tried to—how do you say it?—show off a little, for the benefit of the home folks. But the sun was in his eyes, and he missed his step. He was badly hurt—his bones were broken in many places. But he got well. He did not mind the broken bones, but it made him horribly sad that he could no longer be the greatest 'Human Fly' in the world. For you see, he had lost his nerve."

"He could not bear high places after that. It was dreadful. He told me about it when we went to Paris on our honeymoon, and I wished him to take me up in the Eiffel tower. Even an elevator used to make him ill. He, who had never known what fear was!

"I alone know and I pitied him. He wanted to prove his courage to me, to show me he was not altogether a coward. He did daring things—he became a gambler and a thief. He had to be brave for he could not enter by the window, as some do—he had to bluff his way in, and people might see and identify him. But they never did. He was, supremely clever, or he would never have evaded the police so long. They knew all about him, but they could not prove anything—really."

"As a matter of fact, he was credited with many jobs that he did not do. If he entered a house it was by a ruse, never by the upstairs window! He would have died first."

At the word "died" a spasm of pain crossed her face and she began to cry. "I can not tell any more," she sobbed.

"He left you?" Bates prodded. Louise wiped her eyes and nodded. "He knew what my work was. He should have believed that I did not have any love for the men I duped. Stupid fools! Again and again I told him what donkeys they were, to let themselves be fleeced by a clever woman. He did not always believe me. There was one man, who kept coming to see me even after he knew—what I was after—his money. I kept these visits secret from Enrique to stop his jealousy. He found out and believed I had been unfaithful to him. He—beat me. Then he went away."

"I saw him again, several times, but he never came back to me. When I saw him again at the hotel I knew I loved him still. I gave him money when he asked for it. How could I help it?"

"And the bracelet? You didn't trust him much, did you?" "I trusted him not at all," she replied calmly. "Love is one thing, and money is another. Is it not so?"

"Did he tell you anything about the Jupiter robbery, and where he got the bracelet?" "He told me, but not whose house it was he robbed. That part of his waited under the balcony and he threw the jewels down to him. He thought he might be stopped going out, but he wasn't. Walked right out and into his car and drove away. He was frightened of going out by the window. That was why he didn't get the bracelet—the woman rushed to the balcony, and he was afraid to follow her."

"He got nothing but the bracelet, really. His partner took the rest and fled—after they ran down the boy."

She rolled her eyes in Mary's direction. "Mon Dieu, was he angry when he learned who had got the bracelet! I would hang him, he said, by my stupidity. But he was wrong. It was not I. It was she—"

"What of Bruce?" Bates asked in a low tone. There was no reproach in it—merely curiosity.

Louise shifted uneasily. "He will marry the sweet child vendor, and have many babies, no doubt," she said.

"Whom?" Dirk exclaimed. "I'll have something to say about that," Mary moved over and sat on the arm of his chair; his arm went about her possessively.

"Bruce will go back to his first love, perhaps," Mary spoke up. "His painting. He has neglected it long enough."

They were nearing Key West now. The tug had put a line aboard the "Gypsy" and in a moment hauled her free from the reef with no appreciable damage to her bottom. Mary had sent a radiogram to George Bowen in care of his friend on the Miami paper, telling him of The Fly's confession, and ending: "Have minister at dock. You're to be best man."

Just after sunset they put to alongside the pier at Key West, and the first man aboard was Bowen, looking for all the world like the cat that ate the cream.

"How in the world did you get here so soon?" Mary asked, as he swung her hand and greeted Dirk effusively.

"The paper sent me down in a plane," he explained.

"Paper? What paper?" "One of the best. When you deserted, I had to get a job quick—no money, no meat—so I bulled them into putting me on the afternoon paper down there. Man can't take a job on a morning paper when he's married. Let the young bloods do that."

Mary gasped. "Married? You?" She pretended dismay. "And just yesterday I thought I was the lucky maiden!"

He flushed a trifle under her humorous gaze, but quickly regained his poise. If it hurt to remember his unrealized hopes, he quickly hid it.

"Thought I'd give the minister something to do on the way down," he said. "Bella came along and we were married in the plane. Only time we had—no time for a honeymoon even. Pair of lucky kids, you are! I suppose you'll be taking your honeymoon on this neat little packet, and don't I envy you! Oh, well, come gets the bone and some gets the gravy—that's life!" He was chattering to put himself at ease.

"Thanks for those clippings," Mary told him. "They saved the day. Louise simply wilted when they were shown to her. Threw Bruce overboard like an old shoe, and tried to salvage anything she could out of the wreck of her plans."

"What are you going to do with the necklace?" Mary smiled bitterly. "Give it to you for a wedding present. Want it?"

"Not in my family, thank you! I'll have troubles enough without it." He held his hand about a foot from the floor, then raised it to two feet, then three. Bowen rose abruptly in the midst of this foolery and demanded, "Can a man quench his thirst on this ship?"

"Hi, Steward!" Dirk called, and made various requisitions which that worthy trotted off rapidly to fill.

"I got a by-lined story on the strength of your radiogram," Bowen confided. "Wouldn't be surprised if I'm city editor by this time. Going to stay down here and raise oranges and a little hell on the side—no more New York for me! I suppose you'll be going back to queen it in sassiness, Mrs. Ruyther?"

Mary blushed at the unexpected use of her soon-to-be name.

"I think I'd like to settle down somewhere and just live quietly for a while," she laughed. "I've had enough excitement for a while. Do you think your wife will give you wedding a nice little story in your paper? If she will, she can have the first and last story we'll ever give to the press."

"No fooling? That's nice of you! It'll be quite a little feather in her cap, honest. She's over at the hotel now. You'd like her," he added with sudden irrelevance.

"I do like her," Mary affirmed. And then, aware that things were growing a little strained between them, she excused herself and left Dirk and his best man to be to finish their drinks together.

PREPARATIONS were being made to remove Bruce to a hospital and while they waited for the ambulance to arrive Mary was allowed to see him for a minute. He was a changed man, she saw instantly, in more ways than one.

"Louise has gone ashore," she told him diffidently. His face darkened but he did not look unhappy. "That's all over," he said. "I meant to tell her so, but if she's gone, so much the better. Tell me about De Loma. Did I—die?"

"He's dead. But you didn't kill him. It was the fall did that. Where did you get your gun?" He looked surprised.

"Why, your young man gave it to me the night we left Miami. He wasn't able to protect you himself and he swore me in as deputy," he smiled proudly. "He was pretty badly worried about you, but too stubborn to tell you. I guess—between us—we've thought some pretty hard things about you—and none of them true."

"Thanks," Mary gave him her hand, and a smile of complete friendliness. "Anyway, I'll be leaving soon."

Bruce did not resist her hand as quickly as he might have done. He seemed to be hanging on to his courage, trying to say something that cost him an effort. Finally he managed to blurt it out:

"I'll be taking care of Dad from now on. You needn't worry about that. I wanted you to know," he ended lamely, badly embarrassed by this lapse into sentiment, but in deadly earnest nevertheless. He looked up at his father entered the room, radiant with pride and happiness.

"Mary, my girl—" he began, and his voice broke. Mary turned away, unable to speak. He stopped her, held her chin tightly between his thumb and finger, while he forced the gray eyes to look into his.

"Take the 'Gypsy' for your honeymoon, if you want her," he said. "And when you're through gypsying around, I want you to bring your husband and—come home."

Mary kissed him swiftly, and ran, tears blinding her. She found Dirk and Bowen seated where she had left them, glasses in hand.

Dirk, the prospective bridegroom, frowned seriously at Bowen the bridegroom, and held out a hand that shook with a highly realistic imitation of the palsy. The ice in his glass rattled furiously.

"Like that? Is that the way it gets you?" he asked. "And what do you do if you forget the ring?" Bowen's imitation of a bored man of the world was highly unconvincing.

"Oh, you got used to it," he drawled. "Now, when I was married the first time—" He saw Mary and stopped, grinning impishly.

"Does your wife know where you are?" she demanded, shaking her finger at him shrewdly.

"Oh, I'm going! I'm going!" he whined. And went.

THE END.

Where "Bluebeard" Faces Trial

Here is the opera house at Clarkburg, where Harry F. Powers, West Virginia "Bluebeard" and accused slayer of five, faces trial at the November term of court. A new courthouse is still under construction and a temporary room used for other cases in the federal building is regarded as too small to accommodate the crowds expected at Powers' trial. Powers is shown at the upper left.

France Will Buy Cotton and Wheat

Negotiations Being Carried on With New York Bankers

WASHINGTON—(P)—Large stocks of American wheat and cotton probably will be sold in France if Pierre Laval's talks with New York bankers are successful.

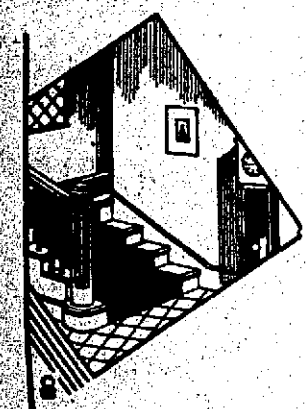

M. de Pasquier, a member of Premier Laval's party who is staying behind, is talking over the details with the financiers. They concern bankers' receipts.

Contrary to market reports, France has bought no wheat or cotton from the Farm Board. Chairman Stone shook his head Tuesday and smilingly said:

"I only wish it were true that France has bought some of our supplies."

State Egg Crop To Bring More Money

Candling Law Favored by Members of Poultry Association

EL DORADO, Ark.—If plans promulgated at the eleventh annual meeting of the Arkansas State Poultry Association here recently are put into effect the state's egg crop will bring upwards of two million dollars more per year, in the belief of L. B. Lloyd, of Hot Springs, president of the association.

Among the important matters before the annual business session, held in conjunction with the state poultry show here, was a resolution favoring enactment of a candling law by the legislature, a method of testing eggs for freshness, recognized in many states as a safeguard for the industry.

Arkansas now produces only about 65 per cent of the eggs used in the state, Lloyd said, and lack of cold storage and candling facilities was blamed partly for this condition.

"Arkansas is potentially one of the greatest poultry sections in the United States," Lloyd added. "We have the climate, the natural resources and plenty of green feeds, and there is no reason why we should not take advantage of the situation."

The oil fields of south Arkansas were cited as an example of how the poultry business has developed in the last few years. On scores of oil leases, shadowed by tall derricks and re-sounding to the sputter of gas engines, are some of the state's best flocks, Lloyd said. Time often drags on the pumpers' hands and many of the workers find a side line pays well. As a result, Lloyd continued, the poultry industry has been given a lift.

Children Find Indian Skulls Near Okolona

ARKADELPHIA—School children waiting for the bus to take them to school at Okolona recently dug into an Indian mound on the Jess Robertson farm, three miles east of Okolona, and found a human skull. The discovery led to further excavation and three more skulls were found as well as other human bones, pieces of pottery, small tomahawks, beads and a knife. Freeman Key, science teacher at Okolona High School will head a party to make further excavations.

White Man and Negro Held on Liquor Charges

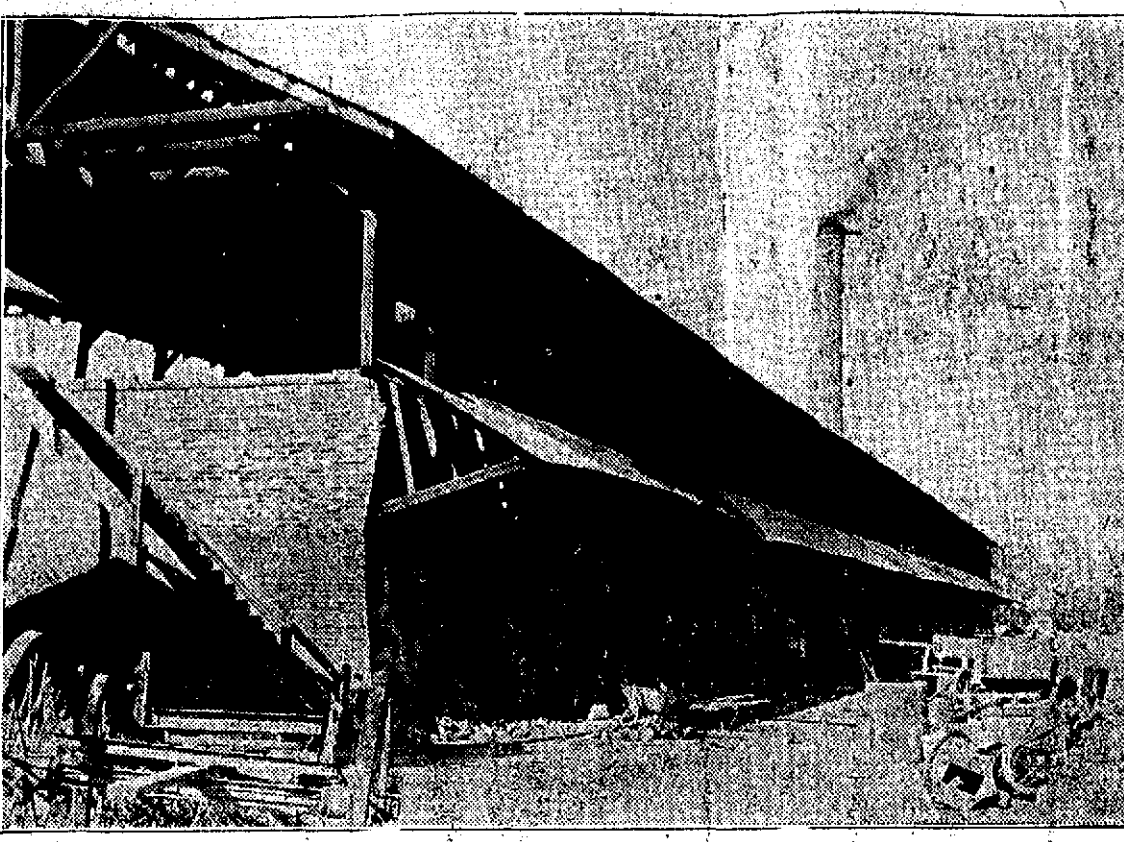

TEXARKANA—Oscar Price and Mack Leslie, the latter a negro, both of LaFayette county, were held for the Arkansas side Federal Grand Jury on charges of manufacturing whisky following a hearing before United States Commissioner J. Warren Tuesday. Price's bond was fixed at $1,000 and that of the negro at $500. In default of sureties both were committed to jail. Federal prohibition officers who made the arrests said they found the pair operating a still in a bend of Red river near the Hempstead county line. A 50-gallon still, 10 gallons of whisky and a large quantity of mash were destroyed.

Heat Control Vital at Hope Brick Plant

Electric Thermostat and Test Candle Show Up to 2,350 Degrees

How do you suppose a master brick-maker tells within a few degrees the temperature at which several tons of brick are cooking in the inferno of a modern kiln?

The temperature may range all the way from 2,050 to 2,350 degrees Fahrenheit, depending on the desired color of brick wanted—but the kiln operator can split that temperature variation of 300 degrees to almost nothing.

The Hope Brick company plant, one of the largest in the state, has seven new kilns in its great yards lying in the northeast corner of the city. There, N. P. O'Neal is carrying on with modern machinery a craft which his father made famous before him—and there his son, Earl O'Neal, the third generation of brick manufacturers, is plant superintendent, a young man who began to learn about brick manufacturing at an age when most boys are hardly launched in their ABC's.

Under the hoods of the seven great brick kilns are delicate electric thermostats, which represent one of the greatest advances in the history of the brick industry. They represent the heart of the heat control system. Wires connect the kiln registers with a central recording board, where the superintendent has the printed hourly record of temperatures. This machine is virtually exact.

One other curious device, however, is used to make sure that the general temperature of the kiln is uniform, so that the brick will be baked to the same color. Temperature variations make a difference in brick coloring. The higher the temperature the deeper the color. At 2,050 degrees, you will have a light, cream-colored brick. Another 100 degrees will produce buff, and 2,350 degrees will turn out a deep red brick.

So, the brick manufacturer places inside the kiln, opposite a small peep-hole, what is known as a pyrometric cone. This is a piece of test material which slowly bends under the maximum heat of the kiln. When it begins to slump over, like a half-melted candle, it tells the superintendent what he wants to know about the progress of the brick in that section of the kiln.

All around the kiln is a row of these peep-holes, each with a pyrometric cone sitting opposite, and a gas flame for each section. Thus, the flames may be regulated to keep the general heat recorded on the thermostat uniform throughout the kiln.

The Star owes the O'Neals an apology for today's picture of the battery of kilns. Through error, the newspaper made a plate from a picture taken just before the newest kilns were installed. In 1926 the O'Neals began rebuilding the plant, and the old-style battery of kilns shown in the picture was replaced with seven new patented kilns—this installation being completed only two years ago.

At the same time another great operating efficiency was accomplished. Hope Brick company formerly dried its moulded brick, prior to putting them in the kilns by means of an open-air drying shed. This process required from 30 to 60 days, and made an interval of from one to two months between the moulding and baking operations.

But today the surplus heat from the kilns is drawn off to a new enclosed shed, where the temperature is from 150 to 225 degrees, and where the moulded brick is made strong enough in two hours to stand the pressure of stacking in the kilns.

It will surprise visitors at the plant to know that underground tunnels connect all of the kilns with the giant 125-foot smokestack which looms over the Hope landscape. The purpose of these tunnels, of course, is to create a strong draught so that the gas flames will be carried to every brick in every kiln. The draught is created through the bottom of the kiln.

When the brick are finished, and the flames cut off, the kiln is still red-hot. The draught is then switched away from the great stack, and into another set of tunnels connecting the red-hot kilns with the ware drying room, which thus uses the surplus heat which otherwise would be wasted at the end of the run.

Hope Brick company employs about 60 men at the present time, and furnishes fine building materials to most of the Central South and the Southwestern states.

Officers Face Second Trial on Murder Charge

ARDMORE, Okla.—(P)—A second murder trial in connection with the slayings of Emilio Cortes Rubio, young kinsman of the president of Mexico, and his comrade, Manuel Garcia Gomez, was announced Tuesday for November 3.

County Attorney Marvin Shilling said William Guess and Cecil Crosby, former deputy sheriffs, would be placed on trial at that time for the killing of Rubio, but neither defendant has been tried for the Gomez slaying.

The youths, motoring to Mexico from American colleges, were shot to death here in June after Guess and Crosby had attempted to interrogate them. Guess, who took full responsibility for the actual shooting, contended the boys threatened him with pistols.

Business Shows Signs of Progress

U. S. Steel's Payment of Dividend Hailed as Sign of Optimism

NEW YORK—(P)—Signs of progress in restoring economic stability were seen Tuesday in the maintenance of dividends by the United States Steel Corporation, the news that the National Credit Corporation had been assured of its initial half billion dollars before the end of the week, and a big advance in the wheat market.

Manifestations of the economic slump appeared, however, in the $3,973,835 deficit from operations reported by U. S. Steel for the third quarter of the year, and omission of the Illinois Central railroad's quarterly dividend of $1 after an unbroken record payments extending over more than 80 years. The stock market was heavy most of the day, closing with numerous losses of $1 to $3 a share.

Despite Illinois Central's dividend action, one prominent carrier, the Norfolk and Western was able to order an extra payment of $2 a share. In addition to the regular quarterly payment of $2.50 a share, the Pennsylvania Railroad, directors of which meet for dividend action Wednesday, will benefit through its large stock holding in Norfolk and Western.

News that the Washington administration has completed its study of means of bolstering railway credit, particularly as a measure of strengthening financial institutions which hold some $5,000,000,000 in their bonds, was received with interest in Wall Street. As anticipated, the administration's plan will be held in abeyance pending an agreement between rail executives and the Interstate Commerce Commission on the commission's plan of granting conditional freight rate increases.

While officials of U. S. Steel declined to comment on dividends or earnings, it was said in high banking circles that the fact the corporation was willing to make a large inroad into surplus might reasonably be interpreted as indicating that its officials felt that more profitable operations were definitely in sight.

Methodists Visit Site Where Wesley Preached

SAVANNAH, Ga.—(P)—Delegates to the Methodist ecumenical conference in Atlanta came here Monday to view the scenes where John Wesley labored to establish the denomination in America.

Bishop W. M. Airsworth, of Birmingham, Ala., who some years ago was pastor of Wesley Monumental church here, was the leader of the delegation. They say the site of the little tabernacle at Bull street and Bay Lane, now occupied by the federal customs house, where Wesley preached, and the site of the first Sunday school in Georgia which he established where Christ Episcopal church now stands.

The delegates were served luncheon by the Methodist ministers of Savannah and then departed for their homes in many parts of the world.
